The screenshot shows the ePractice.eu website interface. At the top, there is a navigation menu with links for Home, Cases, News, Events/Workshops, Library, Factsheets, People, TV, Blog, and Communities. Below the menu, there is a section titled 'Real life good practice cases, submitted by the ePractice members' with a brief description. A 'Submit a Case' button is visible. The main content area displays a list of cases, with the 'Latest Cases' section showing 'Xplore Health' as the most recent entry. A detailed view of a case titled 'With your Chip to the Lib' is shown below. This case includes metadata such as the acronym 'chiplib', the web address 'www.avelgem.be/metjechipnaardebib', the country 'Belgium', and the author 'Veronruysse Tine (Gemeentebestuur Avelgem)'. It also features a 'Good Practice Label 2007' and a 'Case Abstract' describing the transformation of a municipal public library into a self-service library using RFID technology and electronic identity cards.
