

Christian Prehofer

Christian Prehofer's current role is director at DENSO Germany and also serves as docent at TU München. Before this, he was research group leader for Internet of Things & Services at Fortiss in Munich and also lecturing at the TU München.

He also served as Chief Researcher at Fraunhofer ESK and professor in Computer Science at LMU München. Between 1998 and 2009, he held different management and research positions in the mobile communication industry, focusing on digital innovation.

His research interests include Internet of things, connected mobility as well as Data Analysis. He obtained his Ph.D. and his habilitation in computer science from the TU Munich in 1995 and 2000.

He is author of more than 150 publications, one book and holds 34 granted patents.