BIMROP: Building Information Modeling: Research, Open Issues and Perspectives

along with

ICIW 2018, The Thirteenth International Conference on Internet and Web Applications and Services
July 22, 2018 to July 26, 2018 - Barcelona, Spain

Building Information Modeling (BIM) is to understand a building through the usage of a digital model which draws on a range of data assembled collaboratively before, during and after the construction. It brings together all the information about every component of a building, in one place. BIM, with its interoperability properties, is intended to facilitate exchanges and handovers between different stakeholders. Recent years have witnessed the need of automatic verification requirements to warn the non-conformities with the associated 3D visualization, or to provide access to the technical documentation for a given digital model based on its sophisticated contextual information. Especially, these days’ researches are being made by using linked data and semantic web techniques and methodologies. This special issue is related to all the topics around BIM especially emerging semantic-based BIM.

All the topics related to these emerging research fields are welcome in this special track. They include, but not limited to:

- Tools and Techniques for BIM (MVDXML, IfcDoc, etc.)
- Web Services and Ontologies for IFC (Industry Foundation Classes) models
- Building Code-Compliance
- Validation and Verification of IFC models
- Querying IFC models
- Linking building data
- DL (Description Logic) and ontology applications in AEC (Architectures, Engineering and Construction)
- BIM implementation and Deployment
