

Birgitta Dresp-Langley, CNRS UMR 7357 ICube Strasbourg University

Biosketch:

Birgitta was born in Berlin, Germany, and is a Research Director with the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (CNRS) in Paris, France. She obtained her PhD in Cognitive Psychology at Paris Descartes University and joined the CNRS in 1993. Birgitta has authored more than 100 articles in peer-reviewed multidisciplinary science journals, several science book chapters, and is an independent scientific expert to the European Commission. Member of the Editorial Board of international science journals released by Elsevier, Frontiers, and MDPI, her favored science topics are brain-behavior function, “natural” human “intelligence”, and reliable AI.